

I have a strong career history in management, both in Australia and internationally. My core competencies lie in the high-technology, IT and telecommunications domains, with considerable hands-on management skill in both service delivery and new product development. Most recently, I have established a growing export sales business.

My 20 years' experience spans general business, engineering & financial management of geographically dispersed teams, through to the creation and management of multi-disciplinary product development & manufacturing teams targeted towards export markets. My familiarity with software development, mobile telephony infrastructure, Integrated Circuit (IC) design as well as digital, RF, microwave and mechanical design make me a well-rounded leader with a highly transportable skill set.
